Abstract The Human Genetics Education Sub-committee under the Information and Education committee of the American Society of Human Genetics has developed a recommendation of 6 main concepts and 43 sub-concepts it felt should be taught in introductory biology courses for non-science majors. An internet survey instrument was then designed for course instructors to determine the degree to which these concepts and sub-concepts were being taught. The total hours spent on each concept were determined, as were the relative importance and emphasis an instructor attached to each sub-concept (1-5 scale with 5 highest). A total of 357 responses from both 2-year and 4-year institutions was obtained. Of the 93.3 hours the average course offered to students, 15.6% on average was dedicated to genetics including mitosis and meiosis. Of the six main concepts, the highest average time spent was on Transmission of the Genetic Material (3.0 hrs), with 1.9 hours committed to Genetics and Society (fifth lowest). In all sub-concepts except one, a statistically significant higher "importance" was reported compared to the "emphasis" individuals were able to give that sub-concept in the course. This disparity between importance and emphasis represents a significant challenge for improving HGE in introductory biology courses for non-science majors given that it is the only formal exposure to genetics most students will have at the college level.

Сажетак Хуману генетику Образовање Поткомисија под информисање и образовање одбора Америчког удружења за људска генетика је развио препорука 6 основне концепте и 43 под-концепта је осећао да се предаје у уводном биологије курсеве за не-науку већим. Интернет анкету Инструмент је тада био намењен курс инструктора да утврди степен у коме су ови концепти и суб-концепти се уче. Укупно време проведено на сваки концепт је одређен, као и релативни значај и нагласак инструктор придружене сваком под-концепта (1-5 скала са највише 5). Укупно 357 одговора од оба 2 године и 4-годишње институција је добијена. Од 93,3 сати просечно курса нуди студентима, 15,6% у просеку је био посвећен генетици укључујући и Митова Мејоза. Од шест главних концепата, највише је просечно време проведено на пренос генетског материјала (3,0 сати), са 1,9 сати посвећени генетику и друштво (пети најнижи). У свим под-концепата, осим једног, статистички значајно виши "Значај" је известио у односу на "нагласак" појединци су могли да дају под-концепта у току. Овај диспаратет између значај и нагласак представља значајан изазов за побољшање ХГЕ у уводном биологије курсеве за не-науку већим обзиром да је она само формално излагање генетике многи студенти ће имати на колеџ нивоу.

Електронске књиге

- ✓ Електронске књиге су дигитализоване, виртуелизоване верзије књига које се могу читати преко рачунара или посебних уређаја – читача електронских књига.
- ✓ Многи програми и уређаји који се користе за приказивање садржаја електронских књига омогућавају читаоцу функционалност на коју је он навикао приликом читања књига штампаних на папиру: обележавање текста подвлачењем, дописивање коментара и обележавање страница.

Електронске књиге

Електронске књиге се најчешће презентују у PDF формату и могуће их је на рачунару читати помоћу апликације Acrobat Reader, а овај формат препознаје и већина читача електронских књига

Данас у свету постоје многобројни модели ових уређаја од којих се тренутно два издвајају својим квалитетом и распрострањеношћу: Sony eBook Reader и Amazon Kindle.

Оба уређаја нуде већ поменуте функције карактеристичне за већину читача електронских књига

За кориснике у Србији препоручујемо коришћење уређаја Amazon Kindle пошто се Србија налази у систему продаје везаном за овај уређај.

Електронске књиге

Електронске књиге могуће је читати и на таблет рачунарима и мобилним телефонима. Физичке димензије ових уређаја отварају нове просторе и нове временске периоде за читање.

Електронске књиге

Да би читање било ефикасно и продуктивно потребно је користити уређаје примерене датим околностима и окружењу. Читачи електронских књига са екранима на бази технологије електронског мастила (Amazon Kindle) погодни су за “дуго читање”, док су таблет рачунари предвиђени за “кратко читање”.

Introduction

When referring to the modern form of the state, it is usual to recall the threefold Weberian definition of any political formation, where this is conceived as a (a) hierarchically structured organization for the maintenance of order; (b) within a defined geographical area; and (c) through the use and the threat of physical coercion. <sup>1</sup> This definition emphasizes the features of a bounded space, of an internally organized community, and of external strategies of demarcation through signals of possession or through physical defence against intruders. The Weberian formulation establishes a link between the strategies of demarcation of the external boundaries of the geographical space, on the one hand, and the differentiation of roles in the internal organization of the population occupying the space, on the other. On this view, the 'external territorial control' refers to the distinctions and differences in membership rights, privileges and obligations between natives and foreigners that are set up through the building of various kinds of boundaries, while 'internal political structure' refers to the institutional form and the legitimation principle of the relationship between rulers and their subjects.

The history of human organizations can be read as a series of repeated attempts to create territorial borders that correspond and coincide with systemic functional boundaries and which are in line with the consolidated socio-political hierarchies within the corresponding populations. <sup>2</sup> This same history can also be interpreted as the way in which political hierarchies have been shaped, reinforced, shaken, or destroyed by the success or lack of it in similar repeated attempts to limit the opportunities to transcend those same boundaries. Modern state making was a form of such a process, the success of which has led to its generalized imitation. The idea that the links between external territorial consolidation of a polity and its internal political structuring are significant is far from new. Indeed, it has a remarkable pedigree in political theory and historical research. Erasmus noted that: 'I am loth to suspect here what only too often, alas! has turned to be the truth: that the rumour of war with the Turks has been trumped up with the purpose of mulcting the Christian Population, so that being burned and crushed in all possible ways it might be all the more servile towards the tyranny of both kinds of princes' (ecclesiastical and secular). <sup>3</sup> Rousseau reminded us that 'war and conquest

INTRODUCTION

Understanding today's controversies over school desegregation requires an understanding of yesterday's roots of school segregation. While this volume provides descriptions of people, events, court decisions, legislation, and other entries that help to establish this foundation, a different type of presentation and analysis is necessary for comprehending the flow of the history of school segregation and desegregation.

STAGES OF SCHOOL DESEGREGATION

A number of authors have set forth helpful stages of school segregation and desegregation. They revolve around a similar set of key events. Samuel Myers (1989) has set out the broadest framework. Myers specifies four stages of the education of blacks in the United States:

1. Prohibition of the education of blacks before the Civil War. South Carolina adopted the first compulsory illiteracy law in 1740 making it a crime to teach slaves to write; other southern states followed.
2. Development of education for blacks after the Civil War with the establishment of the Freedmen's Bureau, which helped to found schools for blacks throughout the South, and many historically black colleges and universities (HBCUs).
3. Segregation following the Plessy v. Ferguson Supreme Court decision of 1896, which
